Dear David,

Launch of the UK internal market White Paper and consultation

The White Paper on the UK Internal Market was published today (<https://www.gov.uk/government/publications/uk-internal-market>)

Today, the UK Internal Market supports jobs and livelihoods across our country. 75% of Welsh exports of final goods and services are consumed in the rest of the UK, three times as much as Wales exports internationally. In some parts of Wales, a quarter of workers commute in from England on a daily basis.

The Internal Market is just as vital for the rest of the UK. Northern Ireland sells more to the rest of the UK than to all EU member states combined. Scotland sells more to the rest of the UK than to the rest of the world put together.

Following the end of the Transition Period, the way we regulate labour, capital, goods and services in the UK will no longer be decided by the EU. Hundreds of powers previously exercised at EU level will flow directly to the devolved administrations in Edinburgh, Cardiff, and Belfast. The UK will be able to regulate our trade in goods and services in a tailored manner, specifically designed to benefit our businesses, workers and consumers while maintaining our high regulatory standards.

At this historic time, it is important that we provide businesses with certainty about how seamless internal trade will be upheld in the future.

Under the plans in this White Paper, the UK will continue to operate as a coherent internal market. A Market Access Commitment will guarantee UK companies can trade unhindered in every part of the United Kingdom, whilst maintaining our commitment to high regulatory standards.

It is the Government's firm belief that without this legislation, trade from one part of the Union to another could be disrupted through regulatory differences. This could put jobs at risk across the country and leave Welsh businesses potentially unable to sell their goods and services in other home nations.

The proposals in the White Paper will protect the UK internal market for the long-term, including:

- The principle of mutual recognition – goods and services from one part of the UK will be recognised across the country to ensure the devolved administrations can set their own rules and standards in areas of their competence, but still welcome the trade of businesses based anywhere in the UK.
- The principle of non-discrimination – so that there is equal opportunity for companies trading in the UK regardless of where in the UK the business is based.

These principles will prevent any part of the UK from blocking products or services from another part while protecting devolved powers, such as introducing plastic bag minimum pricing or introducing smoking bans.

The consultation launched at the same time as the White Paper will enable businesses, academics, consumer groups and trade unions to input their views of the proposals and consultation questions.

We have welcomed the engagement we have already had with Welsh Government officials and would like to build on this to make sure we fully discuss all the issues raised in the White Paper and consultation. We would value you and your Committee's input in this process.

If you have additional questions or would like further information, our ministerial colleagues and officials would welcome the opportunity to assist you.

Yours sincerely,

THE RT HON ALOK SHARMA MP
Secretary of State for Business, Energy
