Explanatory Memorandum to the Jam and Similar Products (Wales) Regulations 2018

1. Description

The Regulations revoke and replace the Jam and Similar Products (Wales) Regulations 2004, principally in order to correct outdated references to other legislation. Currently, the 2004 Regulations refer to the labelling requirements of the Food Labelling Regulations 1996. However, the Food Labelling Regulations 1996 were revoked by the Food Information (Wales) Regulations 2014 so the references to the Food Labelling Regulations need to be removed. The Regulations also allow enforcement authorities to issue improvement notices for non-compliance with specified requirements instead of bringing criminal prosecutions and make provision about Welsh language labelling.

2. Matters of Special Interest to the Constitutional Affairs Committee

None.

3. Legislative Background

The Welsh Ministers have the required powers to make these amending Regulations under sections 6(4), 16(1), 17(1) and (2), 26(1) and (3), and 48(1) of the Food Safety Act 1990.

The powers given by these sections, which were vested in UK Government Ministers prior to devolution, were transferred to the National Assembly for Wales in 1999 by the National Assembly for Wales (Transfer of Functions) Order 1999 (SI 1999/672) and were subsequently transferred to the Welsh Ministers by paragraph 30 of Schedule 11 to the Government of Wales Act 2006.

The Regulations will be made by statutory instrument subject to the negative resolution procedure.

4. Purpose and Intended Effect of the Legislation

The Jam and Similar Products (Wales) Regulations 2004 (“the 2004 Regulations”) transpose the requirements of Directive 2001/113/EC relating to fruit jams, jellies and marmalades and sweetened chestnut purée intended for human consumption. The Directive lays down compositional standards which products must meet in order to be labelled as “jam”, “jelly”, “marmalade” etc. (i.e. products must contain a minimum amount of characterising ingredients such as fruit and sugar).

Incorrect references to the Food Labelling Regulations 1996

Currently, the 2004 Regulations refer to the labelling requirements of the Food Labelling Regulations 1996. However, the Food Labelling Regulations 1996 were revoked by the Food Information (Wales) Regulations 2014. The references to the Food Labelling Regulations in the 2004 Regulations therefore need to be revoked.

Introduction of improvement notices

The 2004 Regulations provide that it is a criminal offence to fail to comply with the 2004 Regulations' requirements on the use of reserved descriptions and on labelling. Conviction is punishable by a fine to be determined by the magistrates (with no maximum fine level).

The Jam and Similar Products (Wales) Regulations 2018 will amend the current regulatory regime to allow enforcement officers to issue improvement notices for non-compliance, instead of proceeding to criminal prosecutions. A food business operator who fails to comply with the requirements of the improvement notice will be guilty of a criminal offence and may be prosecuted for not complying with the notice. This would follow the approach introduced in a number of food SIs for non-safety related offences.

Making provision for Welsh language labelling

The 2004 Regulations are silent as to whether manufacturers may display the Welsh language equivalent of the reserved descriptions alongside the mandatory English language text.

The 2018 Regulations will introduce provision to make clear that the reserved description may be displayed in Welsh (or any other language) alongside the English text, and will set out what those Welsh reserved descriptions are.

5. Consultation

The Food Standards Agency ran a shortened eight-week consultation from the 20 November 2017 to 15 January 2018. There were no responses to the consultation in Wales as a result there are no changes required to the Regulations.

6. Regulatory Impact Assessment

A Regulatory Impact Assessment has not been prepared to accompany these Regulations as there are no changes to the current controls and therefore no identified costs to consumers, businesses or enforcement authorities associated with implementation of these Regulations.
